

The Oasis Centre - Cornwall Risk Assessment and Policies

Introduction

Modern society has a heightened awareness of concerns relating to issues such as Safeguarding, Insolvency and Health and Safety and there is a requirement for every charity, however small, to consider the range of risks that surround or are inherent in its activities.

The Oasis Centre - Cornwall is not exempt from this requirement. Indeed, Charity Commission guidance recommends that every charity should (1) identify the major risks to which it is exposed; (2) ensure that those risks are reviewed regularly; and (3) establish systems and procedures to manage those risks.

What follows is an attempt to list the most obvious risks and to outline how they are addressed by The Oasis Centre – Cornwall.

Risk Identified	Policy Adopted and Action Taken
All common risks faced by charity trustees for which appropriate insurance is readily available.	The Charity maintains insurance policies to cover these risks.
The risk of damage to plate glass during the annual hurling in St Columb.	The cost of insurance cover is prohibitive and not the best use of funds. The window is protected by screens and the risk of damage thus reduced is acceptable.
Safeguarding risks affecting the vulnerable people that the Charity serves.	These risks are addressed by the Safeguarding Policy first adopted by the Charity on 20 th April 2016. Trustees and volunteers are given the training they need.
Risks associated with (1) the use of the Charity's premises; (2) attendance at events organised by the Charity in other locations; (3) accidents; (4) the personal safety of volunteers; and (5) the assessment of those risks.	These risks are addressed by the Health & Safety Policy first adopted by the Charity on 20 th April 2016.
Risks from faulty equipment.	The Charity has arranged for all electrical equipment and the fire extinguishers to be checked professionally on a regular basis.
Risks arising from transport arrangements organised by the Charity.	The Charity requires all those providing transport to carry their own insurance cover for passengers.
Risk to the charity from frauds and scams and those risks facing trustees, volunteers and the vulnerable people who look to the Charity for assistance and guidance on such matters.	The Charity receives frequent updates from Action Fraud and the police regarding scams and similar fraudulent activity. This information is available to trustees and volunteers and is on the website.

Risk of the embezzlement of the Charity's funds.	The signatures of two Trustees unconnected with the payee are required on every cheque issued by the Charity. The Trustee maintaining the primary records and the Trustee preparing the accounts are unconnected individuals. Monthly figures are made available to all Trustees.
The risk that (1) due to economic causes or other circumstances outside the control of the Trustees grant income may cease to be available; and/or (2) donations from other sources may dry up.	These risks are addressed by the Reserves Policy first adopted by the Charity on 20 th April 2016.
The risk of losing the services of the Charity's volunteers.	The risk is addressed by both the Volunteer Policy and the Support Policy first adopted by the Charity on 20 th April 2016. The Trustees are also developing activities that have the volunteers as their focus and encourage the teamwork among its volunteers.
Risks that might arise from weaknesses in the Trustee structure or from the inadequacy of Trustee skills.	The Charity intends to widen the range of Trustee skills and to provide training for those Trustees who need it. The Charity welcomes and takes pride in its links with Transformation Cornwall, which provides much needed guidance.
The death or incapacity of any individual who currently performs a key role in the Charity's activities.	The risk is addressed by the Succession Policy first adopted by the Charity on 20 th April 2016.
Risks to the Charity's computer systems and website as a consequence of attacks made by malicious persons.	All personal data and other sensitive material is held on a computer having its security professionally installed and all users have appropriate training. The website is managed professionally.
Risks such as loss of data and unauthorised access to sensitive material as a consequence of computer theft or destruction.	The data stored on the charity's computers is passworded and/or encrypted and regularly backed up to a remote location.
The risk of breaching the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998	The risk is addressed by the Data Protection Policy first adopted by the Charity on 20 th April 2016.
